views on documenta 12

In its more than 50 years of existence, documenta in Kassel (Germany) has developed into one of the most important hubs of the international contemporary art scene. This prominent platform is the best place to discover and discuss new developments and currents in the art world. This year's 12th documenta, judging by the issued works, reflected social and political questions and gave therefore explicit impulses to an engaging public debate. The photographers Okhai Ojeikere and George Osodi and the architect Prof. David Aradeon are three famous representatives of the Nigerian cultural scene who were official guests of the documenta. On the 29th of September, guests of documenta, journalists and other art connoisseurs, who visited the exhibition, will venture into a critical review on one of the big art events of 2007. A look at some art museums and galleries will add to this excursion into the international art scene.
