Project Brief History:

The Triangle Workshop was first started and established in 1982 at Pine Plains in New York, U.S.A. by the sculptor sir Anthony Caro and the art collector Robert Loder. Over 2500 artists have participated in the network of workshops based on the Triangle model over a period of 20 years.

Since then the idea has continued to spread. In Zambia, Anna Kindersley worked with Zambian Artists such as Patrick Mweemba, Godfrey Setti, Filinto Chanda, Patrick Mumba and Vincentio Phiri to put Mble in motion and on the map of art activities, a small committee of artists and non artists founded Mble as a non profit grassroots organization, the first Mble workshop was held at the Eagles Rest in Slavonga 1993 and every year thereafter (except 1996) until 1999 when it was was discontinued.

Triangle Arts Trust through Danda Jarojimek facilitated a web training project in 2002 with members from Rockston Studio, Mble and VAC Documentation Centre, a task was given to Vincentio Phiri and Zenzele Chulu, to design and create a website under a new name of Insaka International Artists Workshop to link to other similar workshop organisers around the world, for artists to use as an interactive communication tool that was to open up artistic opportunities through networking. The other task was to consolidate an administrative structure to enhance the running of workshops and other artistic capacity building initiatives. Since 2002, Insaka International Artists Workshop has organized three international workshops in 2003, 2004 and 2005 respectively with a total number of 63 Zambian and International artists participating in the workshops held at Eagle Rest, Slavonga and Chaminuka Nature Reserve, north of Lusaka.

From 1993 to date, through Mble and Insaka artists workshops, 156 Zambian artists have attended international art workshops, making it the single largest contributor to visual arts development in Zambia in the last 14 years of art history. Insakarlists intends to construct artists studios for residence programmes and an international artists resource centre by 2010.

Socio - cultural exchange

A certain bond of family ties develops during these workshops, a sense of belonging, a sense of artistic pride, inter, cultural interaction process becomes a key element in making friendship that can last way beyond the two weeks period of international workshops. These friendships became basis of continued art exploration by artists who want to learn further cultural traits of each others countries, thereby enriching their own individual experiences which they bring back to their communities. Friendship has been beneficial to workshops because it bring artists together to produce collaborative art expressions.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

COMMUNITY OUTREACH

Artists are social ambassadors because of their talents, which the community can benefit with artists present in their environment. Collaborations with the surrounding communities of the workshop venue gives visiting artists a glimpse of Zambian society, as for the local artist it is a sense of community responsibility, as role models doing community work motivates society to appreciate art and artists. Issue based murals, in communities on HIV / AIDS, Human Rights, Violence and environmental subjects can be addressed by artists with their creative influence.
